

Marcus R. Escobedo

Marcus R. Escobedo, MPA, is vice president, communications and a senior program officer at The John A. Hartford Foundation, where he develops and implements the organization's communications strategy and oversees a grants portfolio of communications and special projects. He joined the foundation in 2006, and as a program team member, he has managed grant initiatives to support academic geriatrics training programs for specialist physicians and improve emergency departments and surgical care for older adults.